Overview. In 1972, Donald M. Murray published a brief manifesto titled "Teach Writing as a Process Not Product", a phrase which became a rallying cry for many writing teachers. Ten years later, in 1982, Maxine Hairston argued that the teaching of writing had undergone a "paradigm shift" in moving from a focus on written products to writing processes.

When you create a classroom workshop environment--be it a writing workshop or reading workshop--you turn a large portion of control and choice over to your students. Make no mistake: the teacher is still in control and the students' choices fall within certain pre-determined and objective-based parameters, but the motivating force behind a workshop is that it is intentionally student-centered.
